Ruby - Bug #5659

bug releasing a gem created with rails 3.1

11/22/2011 09:26 PM - viniciusgati (Vinicius Gati)

Status:	Rejected
Priority:	Normal
Assignee: Target version:
ruby -v:	1.9.3-head	Backport:

Description

I made a rails engine using rails 3.1

the steps i follow was :

i created the engine with rails new plugin test_rb_bug

then i updated the gemspec

then i created a git repo and pushed: https://github.com/viniciusgati/test_rb_bug after that i do a rake release and got the error: https://gist.github.com/1383444 obs: this gist contains the machos crash report to the gist is the error for the first gem when i found the error.

and i reproduced the same now with a fresh engine...

system: MacOS lion
rails: 3.1.3
ruby: 1.9.3-head
rvm: 1.8.6
rubygems 1.8.10

History

From what it appears to be, SSL was involved in the crash.

Can you reproduce this against releases 1.9.3-p0?

Can you verify against which version of OpenSSL your Ruby installation linked against? If was 0.9.8 please try installing OpenSSL 1.0.0 and rebuild your Ruby to link against it.

#3 - 11/23/2011 03:13 AM - viniciusgati (Vinicius Gati)

I updated the gist with the 1.9.3-p0 log error

$ openssl version
OpenSSL 1.0.0e 6 Sep 2011

:connect errors can be caused by OpenSSL.

Having that version of OpenSSL in your system, are you sure is the same Ruby is built against?

Please do:

$ ruby -v -ropenssl -e "puts OpenSSL::OPENSSL_VERSION"

Just to be sure.

I don't see in the output you provided "Pushing gem..." legend. Are you sure the gem is being pushed to rubygems.org and no RUBYGEMS_HOST environment variable is being set?

#6 - 12/03/2011 10:13 PM - viniciusgati (Vinicius Gati)

$ ruby -v -ropenssl -e "puts OpenSSL::OPENSSL_VERSION"
ruby 1.9.3dev (2011-10-11 revision 33457) [x86_64-darwin11.2.0]

Thanks. Then, emboss, do you know?
The trace looks similar to #6886 which was closed as 3PI.
What do you think?

@vincius do you get this error on the latest release? I can't reproduce it on any of the machines I've got handy.

The git reposirory/gist is deleted... Do you still reproduce with the current release of Ruby?
